DEC's REPORT

[cont. from page 1] The county and many of its individual cities were virtually islands by 18:00 that evening. We were called upon early in the day and were able to set up communications at the aforementioned locations and by the late afternoon we had added evacuation centers in Nipomo, Los Osos, and the Armory in Atascadero. ECC-5 requested two mobile operators to report local conditions in the outlying community, but we were not able to supply these operators for a variety of reasons. Due to the generosity of local motels, friends, and relatives, all of the evacuation centers were closed prior to midnight during both events.

We have had our share of disasters in the past year. The 41 fire seems like ancient history. All the speculation about a possible severe erosion problem due to the 41 fire is now fact. Many of our members were affected directly from either one or possibly both the fire and the flooding. Despite the severe weather we have always had a reasonable response to the call outs. In particular Cal. Poly. is on fire! These young people are HOT. Fun to work with and very professional. Let's hope they find homes here after graduation. You are all a credit to the organization.

As in every event worked or observed we always learn. The 41 fire showed us the need for individuals dedicated to staffing and record keeping. The emergency forms binders that should now be in the hands of each EC and at each ECC will aid us in our record keeping. We also recognized the need for prominent visual identification. The vests we will be using in the future will not only identify us to those who need our assistance but also to the media. We are stepping up our use of the Tuesday evening check-ins for training. More and more people are getting comfortable with packet radio.

In the past year we have been looking for volunteers to hold the many committee positions that it takes to make the organization work. The people that we have come forward are impressive. To work with people who intend to give more than they take is very gratifying. I hope to see many of you at the April 1st Training Seminar, it will be a great opportunity to work out some kinks and define our roles and objectives for future events.
